

Bedside Of Bank Teller

Guarded by the Officer Who Served the Warrant

Charging Embezzlement of Depositors' Money.

Smith Was Also School and City Treasurer, But His Accounts as Such Are Intact.

Lancaster, Ohio, February 1.—Harry Smith, teller of the Hooking Valley National Bank of this city was placed under arrest today, charged with embezzling $12,773.38 of the bank's funds. Mr. Smith was one of the most popular young men in the city, and, besides his connection with the bank, is City Treasurer, having been elected by a handsome majority in the last municipal election, with a Democratic majority against him. He also serves as Treasurer of the public school fund and is sole owner of the Ohio and Pennsylvania League franchise in this city. Mr. Smith is sick in bed with typhoid fever, and his arrest may prove serious in his weak condition. An officer was placed in charge of him.

The shortage was discovered two days ago, but was kept quiet by the bank officials until early this morning, when the Cashier, swore out a warrant before a Squire charging Smith with embezzling the sum of $5,385 July 2, last; $1,500 August 1; $600 September 1; $900 October 1; $1,000 November 1; $670 December 1.

His Property Attached.

The warrant was not served until about noon. Upon further investigation officials found an additional shortage and filed an attachment petition in the Common Pleas Court in the sum of $12,773.38. Over $7,000 of the shortage was discovered since the first action was taken.

An order of attachment was placed in the hands of Sheriff Kramer who levied upon Smith's property, consisting of his residence, valued at $5,000; one fourth interest in a business block valued at $10,000 and a $2,500 cottage at Licking Reservoir.

When the shortage was discovered a meeting of the directors was called and information was given out that the amount had been made good. Mr. Smith is a nephew of the President of the bank, Geo. E. Martin. State Insurance Commissioner A. I. Vorys is also a Director. Smith was never required to give any bond. The utmost confidence was placed in him. He has been teller for about seven years and was bookkeeper for many years previous. His speculations are supposed to have been worked by not crediting deposits upon the day book but placing the amount upon the ledger.

Added the Examiner.

When the Examiner, Samuel McCune, was here September last, Mr. Smith assisted him in his work. It is also thought he shifted the leaves in a loose leaf ledger before the examination took place.

Cashier Withoff stated tonight that the shortage would not go above that already reported. Teller Smith, when asked if he had anything to say regarding his arrest, said he had not.

Mayor Pursell requested his resignation as City Treasurer and will appoint his successor as soon as possible. There is no shortage in his accounts with the city.

Mr. Smith being sole owner of the Ohio and Pennsylvania ball franchise here, the expose has stated the fans

New York, Feb. 2.—At 4:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon the twelfth juror in the Thaw trial was seated in the box, and Harry Kendall Thaw stood face to face with the completed jury that will decide his fate.

"Well," he said, sinking back easily into his chair, "I am glad that part of the business is over."

Howard Gerstman was the spokesman who finally answered all of the requirements. He is the New York representative of a Philadelphia woolen house, 35 years old, married.

The end of the jury picking came unexpectedly and created a profound sensation in the courtroom. Court was immediately afterward adjourn-

$5,000 DAMAGES

Asked for by O. C. DeWeese Who Sues the Lima & Toledo Railway Company for Injuries Sustained.

By a petition filed in the common pleas court this afternoon the Lima & Toledo Railway company is made the defendant in a five thousand dollar damage suit, the plaintiff being Oliver C. DeWeese, of West Wayne street, who alleges that on June 1, 1906, he was struck by one of the defendant's cars and severely injured.

He recites that he was hurled twelve or fifteen feet and bruised all over his body, his right arm being permanently disabled, and that this was caused by the negligence of the company's servants in not sounding a gong and failing to keep a car under control at a public crossing. Richie & Leland are his attorneys.

IMPROVED

Is the Condition of Sheriff Van Gunten and His Recovery is Now Expected.

There is a marked improvement in condition of Sheriff Van Gunten, who was injured in the C. H. & D. wreck at Anna yesterday morning.

Mr. Van Gunten regained consciousness late yesterday afternoon, but was not wholly rational until this morning, when, for the first time since his arrival, he realized that he was in his own home.

Unless unlooked for symptoms develop, his recovery is now assured.

ed until Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock, when Assistant District Attorney Francis P. Garvan will open for the state. He said last night that the opening will not consume more than 15 minutes, and Jerome served warning on the defense that unless the cross-examination of his witnesses is prolonged he will have presented the entire case of the state by the recess hour on Monday.

Thaw, through his chief counsel, Clifford W. Hartridge, made the following statement last night.

"I expect to go free. I am perfectly satisfied with the jury as selected. I believe that I shall receive a fair trial and I know that I shall be acquitted."

"I shall certainly take the witness stand in my own defense."

"I have absolute belief that I shall be acquitted and that it will be proved beyond doubt that I was justified."

"I will gladly place my fate in the hands of this jury. I fear neither the death chair nor the madhouse, for I know that I shall go free."

"I am in perfect health and shall undergo my ordeal without thought of a breakdown, mental or physical."

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Andry, of 675 north Union, are the happy parents of a baby girl which arrived in town Thursday.

EDITOR ARRESTED ON SERIOUS CHARGE.

Kenton, Feb. 2.—Editor J. C. Shuler of the Review of Forest, Hardin county, was arrested last night on the charge of performing a criminal operation in his office upon Miss Eunice Hopkins, 19, type compositor. He appeared before Mayor Cessna and gave bond to appear at a hearing Thursday. The girl is in a dangerous condition.

Shuler is a middle-aged man with a family.

A SURPRISE.

Last evening, Carl Thornberry, was given a pleasant surprise at his home on east Kibby street, in honor of his fifteenth birthday by quite a number of his friends. After spending several hours in a social way a lunch was served to the following guests: Misses Helen and Lois Davis, Rowena Coulter, Ruth Millers, Elizabeth Walters, Olive Marshall, Mabel Churchill, Nettie Johnson, Gertrude Medley, Grace Haddock, Vera and Nellie Hawkins, Lillian Proctor, Edna Stephens, Zelma Shook, Edna Thornberry and Messrs. Charles and Ernest Tagerman, Oliver Lamborn, Minor Griffith, Morris Snyder, Ray Miller, Willie Rawn, Forrest Hutchinson, Ladurg and Walter Christman, Clarence Long, George Phillips and Lionel Thornberry.

DIVORCE GRANTED.

Mrs. Emma Ditts Snyder was granted a decree of divorce from her husband, George Snyder, in common pleas court this afternoon on the ground of gross neglect and cruelty. Several East Lima residents were examined in the case. Mr. Snyder did not appear against the defendant.

Judge Quail this afternoon granted a decree of divorce to Lillian Hughes on grounds of neglect and failure to provide. The defendant, Harry Hughes, did not contest the case. Russell L. Armstrong was the plaintiff's attorney.

When the blood is chilled in any part of your body, or held back by pressure or injury, uric acid turns into little crystals, resembling sharp grains of fine sand. Over-feeding also may produce so much waste matter that your blood can't keep the uric acid dissolved, and the crystals are formed. Your kidneys cannot pass these crystals—they lodge and collect in the little filtering tubes, where they scratch and irritate the tender fibres just as grains of sand would do if you rubbed them in your eye. A this irritation causes the pain in your back which warns you of kidney disease, Bright's Disease and death.

At the very first sign of kidney disease, you must take LIFE PLANT. LIFE PLANT has the power of dissolving the hard uric acid grains, being provided by Nature for just that purpose. You will feel relief from the first, and in a short time LIFE PLANT will have gently washed every trace of uric acid out of your kidneys (or wherever else it may exist) and give the organ back its blood-purifying powers. Thousands have saved themselves by taking LIFE PLANT. Read what Mr. John Lemon, of Wadsworth, Ohio, says:

"As regard to your medicine, I think it is the best in the world. Once I figured that I could not live without it. I feel that I can't live all right. My kidneys troubled me and I was drowsy in my head. That has almost all left me. I think one more bottle will fix me all right. I can say too much for Life Plant."

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON.
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

which nothing except death, sickness or imprisonment could take from him, not even the loss of Canaan. Unforewarned music sounded in his ears again, but he did not shrink from it now. This was not the circus band he had heard as he left the square, but a melody like a faraway serenade at night as of "the horns of elf land faintly blowing," and he closed his eyes with the sweetness of it.

"Go ahead," he whispered. "Do that all you want to. If you'll keep it up like this awhile, I'll follow with 'Little Brown Jug. How I Love Thee!' It seems to pay after all."

The welcome stimulus, however, were but the prelude to a harsher sound which interrupted and annihilated them—the courtyard bell clanging out 12. "All right," said Joe. "It's noon, and I'm across Main street bridge."

He opened his eyes and looked about him whimsically. Then he shook his head again.

A lady had just emerged from the bridge and was coming toward him. It would be hard to get at Joe's first impressions of her. We can find conveyance for only the broadest and heaviest. Ancient and modern instances multiply the case of the sleeper who dreams out a long story in accurate color and line detail, a tale of years, in the opening and shutting of a door. So with Joseph in the brief space of the lady's approach. And with him, as with the sleeper, it must have been—in fact it was—in his recollections later a blur of emotion.

He had little knowledge of the millinery arts, and he needed none to see the harmony—harmony like that of the day he had discovered a little while ago. Her dress and hat and gloves and jewelry showed a pale lavender over-riding like that which he had seen over-riding the western slope. (Afterward he discovered that the gloves she wore that day were gray and that her hat was for the most part white.) The charm of fabric and that belonging to what she wore was no shame to her, not being of prime importance beyond herself. It was but the expression of her dauntless and the adjunct of it. She was tall, but if Joe could have spoken or thought of her as "stouter" he would have been capable of calling her tips "rod," in which case he would not have been Joe and would have been as far from the truth as her lips were from red or as her supreme delicateness was from more slenderness.

She was to pass him—so he thought—and as she drew nearer his breath came faster.

"Remember! Across Main street bridge at noon!"

Was this the day of whom the voice had warned him? With that, there befell him the mystery of last night. He did not remember, but it was as if he had again lived the highest hour of happiness in a life a thousand years ago; perfume and music, roses, nightingales and plucked harpsstrings. Yes, something wonderful was happening to him.

She had stopped directly in front of him—stopped and stood looking at him with her clear eyes. He did not lift his own to hers. He had long experience of the arrested gaze of women, but it was not only that. A great shyness beset him. He had risen and removed his hat, trying (unsuccessfully) not to clear his throat, his every day strange urging upon him that she was a stranger in Canaan who had lost her way—the preposterousness of any one's looking the way in Canaan was just now appealing to his every day sense.

"Can I—can I?" he stammered, blushing miserably, meaning to fulfill with "direct you," or "show you the way."

Then he looked at her again and saw what seemed to him the strangest sight of his life. The lady's eyes had filled with tears—filled and overflowed.

"If I sit here on the log with you," she said, and her voice was the voice which he had heard saying, "Remember! Across Main street bridge at noon!"

"That!" he gasped.

"You don't need to dust it!" she went on triumphantly. And even then he did not know who she was.

CHAPTER XI.

THERE was a silence, for if the dazzled young man could have spoken at all he could have found nothing to say; and, perhaps, the lady would not trust her own voice just then. His eyes had fallen again. He was too dazed and, in truth, too panic-stricken now to look at her, though if he had been quite sure that she was part of a wonderful dream he might have dared. She was seated beside him, and had handed him her parasol in a little way which seemed to imply that of course he had reached for it, so that it was to be seen how used she was to have all tiny things done for her, though this was not then of his tremulous observing. He did perceive, however, that he was to feel the daily thing. He pressed the catch and let down the top lightly, as if fearing to break or fear it, and as it closed, held near his face, he caught a very faint, sweet, spicy emanation from it like wild roses and cinnamon.

He did not know her, but his timidity and a strange little choke in his throat, the sudden light which had Once, upon a white morning long ago, the occasional progress of a certain youth up Main street had stirred Canaan. But that day was as nothing to him. Mr. Mantry had left temporary paralysis in his wake, but in the case of the two young people who passed slowly along the street today it was petrification, which actually threatened in several instances most notably that of Mr. Arp, to become permanent.

The lower portion of the street, lined with three and four story buildings of brick and stone, rather grim and hot facades under the midday sun, afforded little shade to the church corners, who were working homeward in professional little groups and clumps, none walking fast, though none with the appearance of great leisure, since neither rate of progress would have been esteemed befitting the day. The growth of Canaan, steady, though never startling, had left almost all of the churches downtown, and Main street the principal avenue of communication between them and the "residence section."

So today the intermittent procession stretched along the new concrete sidewalks from a little below the square to upper Main street, where maples lined the thoroughfare and the mansions of the affluent stood among pleasant lawns and shrubberies.

It was late, for this had been a common Sunday, and those far in advance, who had already reached the pretty and shady part of the street, were members of the churches where services had been shortest, though few in the long parade looked as if they had been attending anything, very short, and many heads of families were crisp in their replies to the theological inquiries of their offspring. The men imparted largely a gloom to the line—erect countenance, most of them wearing hot, long black coats and having wilted their collars, the ladies relieving this gloom somewhat by the lighter tints of their garments, the spick and span little girls relieving it greatly by their white dresses and their faces, the latter bright with the hope of Sunday ice cream, while the boys, experiencing some solace in that they were finally out where a person could at least scratch himself if he had to, yet oppressed by the decorous necessities of the day, marched along, furtively planning behind imperturbably secretive countenances various means for the later dispersal of an odious monotony.

Usually the conversation of this long string of the homeward bound was not too frivolous or worldly. Nay, it properly inclined to discussion of the sermon.

It was a serious and seemingly Sunday parade, the propriety of whose behavior was today almost disintegrated when the lady of the bridge walked up the street in the shadow of a lady lavender parasol carried by Joseph Louden. The congregation of the church across the square—that to which Joe's steps had been late—was just debouching, almost in mass, upon Main street when these two went by. It is not quite the truth to say that all except the children came to a dead halt, but it is not very far from it. The air was thick with subdued exclamations and whisperings.

Here is no mystery. Joe was probably the only person of respectable derivation in Canaan who had not known for weeks that Ariel Tabor was on her way home. And the news that he had arrived the night before had been widely disseminated on the way to church, entering church, in church (even so) and coming out of church. An account of her house in the Avenue Henri Martin and of her portrait in the Salon—a mysterious business to many and not lacking in grandeur for that—had occupied two columns in the Loccum on a day some months before when Joe had found himself in uniquely headlined on the first page and had dropped the paper without reading further. Ariel's name had been in the mouth of Canaan for a long time—unfortunately for Joe, however, not in the mouth of that Canaan which held converse with him.

Joe had not known her. The women recognized her infallibly at first glance, even those who had quite forgotten her. And the women told their men; hence the no-Sunday-like demeanor of the procession, for few towns hold it more unseemly to stand and stare at passersby, especially on the Sabbath. But Ariel Tabor returned—and walking with—Joe Louden.

Ariel flushed a little when she perceived the extent of their conspicuousness, but it was not the blush that Joe remembered had reddened the tanned skin of old, for her brownness had gone long ago, though it had not left her merely pink and white. This was a delicate rosy glow rising from her cheeks to her temples, as the earliest dawn rises. If there had been many words left in Joe he would have called it a divine blush. It fascinated him, and if anything could have deepened the glamour about her it would have been this blush. He did not understand it, but when he saw it he stumbled.

Those who gaped and stared were for him only blurs in the background. Truly, he saw "uncle as trees walking," and when it became necessary to step out to the curb in passing some clump of people it was to him as if Ariel and he, enchanted alone, were working their way through underbrush in the woods.

He kept trying to realize that this lady of wonder was Ariel Tabor, but he could not. He could not connect the shabby Ariel, whom he had treated as one boy treats another, with this young woman of the world. He had always been embarrassed himself and ashamed of her when anything she did made him remember that, after all she was a girl as on the day he ran away when she kissed a lock of his hair escaping from the bridge. With that recollection even his ears grew red. It did not seem probable that it would ever happen again. The next instant he heard himself calling her "Miss Tabor."

At this she seemed amused. "You ought to have called me that years ago," she said, "for all you knew me." "I did know her—yes, I mean," he answered. "I used to know nearly everything you were going to say before you said it. It seems strange now."

"Yes," she interrupted, "it does seem strange now."

"Somehow," he went on, "I doubt if now I'd know."

"Somehow," she echoed, with due gravity, "I doubt it too."

Although he had so dim a perception of the staring and whispering which greeted and followed them, Ariel, of course, was thoroughly aware of it, though the only sign she gave was the slight blush, which very soon disappeared. That people turned to look at her may have been not altogether a novelty. A girl who had learned to appear unconscious of the continental stare, the frank glances of the boulevard in Rome, was not ill equipped to face Main street, Canaan, even as it was today.

Under the gymnasium before they started they had not talked a great deal. There had been long silences, at most all her questions concerning this period of his runaway absence. She appeared to know and to understand everything which had happened since his return to the town. He had not, in his turn, reached the point where he would begin to question her. He was too breathless in his consciousness of the marvelous present hour. She had told him of the death of Roger Tabor, the year before. "Poor man," she said gently. "He lived to see how the other fellows did it at last, and everybody liked him. He was very happy over there."

After a little while she had said that it was growing close upon lunch time; she must be going back.

"Then—then—goodbye," he replied meekly.

"Why?"

"I'm afraid you don't understand. It wouldn't do for you to be seen with me. Perhaps, though, you do understand. Wouldn't that why you asked me to meet you out here beyond the bridge?"

In answer she looked at him full and straight for three seconds, then threw back her head and closed her eyes tight with laughter. Without a word she took the parasol from him, opened it herself, placed the smooth white coral handle of it in his hand and lightly took his arm. There was no further demur on the part of the young man. He did not know where she was going. He did not ask.

Once Ariel smiled politely, not at Mr. Louden, and inclined her head twice, with the result that the latter, after thinking for a time of how gracefully she did it and how pretty the top of her hat was, became gradually conscious of a meaning in her action—that she had bowed to some one across the street. He lifted his hat, about four minutes later, and discovered Mamie Pike and Eugene upon the opposite pavement walking home from church together. Joe changed color.

The sound of Ariel's voice brought him to himself.

"She is lovelier than ever, isn't she?" "Yes, indeed," he answered blankly.

"Would you still risk?" she began, smiling, but, apparently thinking better of it, changed her question. "What is the name of your dog, Mr. Louden? You haven't told me."

"Oh, he's just a yellow dog," he evaded unskillfully.

"Young man!" she said sharply. "Well," he admitted reluctantly. "I call him Speck for short."

"And what for long? I want to know his real name."

"It's mighty inappropriate, because we're fond of each other," said Joe, "but when I picked him up he was so yellow and so thin and so creeping and so scared that I christened him 'Re-spectability.'"

They were now opposite the Pike mansion, and, to his surprise, she turned, indicating the way by a touch upon his sleeve, and crossed the street toward the gate, which Mamie and Eugene had entered. Mamie, after exchanging a word with Eugene upon the steps, was already hurrying into the house.

Ariel paused at the gate as if waiting for Joe to open it.

"Don't you know?" she cried. "I'm staying here. Judge Pike has charge of all my property. He was the administrator or something." Then, seeing him, she said:

"You told me where you lived," she answered.

ing him chortles and sghast, she went on: "Of course you don't know. You don't know anything about me. You haven't even asked."

"You're going to live here?" he gasped.

"Will you come to see me?" she laughed. "Will you come this afternoon?"

He grew white. "You know I can't," he said.

"You came here once. You risked a good deal then just to see Mamie dance by a window. Don't you dare a little for an old friend?"

"All right," he gulped. "I'll try."

Mr. Bantley had come down to the gate and was holding it open, his eyes fixed upon Ariel, within them a mingling glow. An impression came to Joe afterward that his stepbrother had looked very handsome.

"Possibly you remember me, Miss Tabor?" said Eugene, in a deep and impressive voice, lifting his hat. "We were neighbors, I believe, in the old days."

She gave him her hand in a fashion somewhat "mannerly," favoring him with a bright, negligent smile. "Oh, quite," she answered, turning again to Joe as she entered the gate. "Then I shall expect you."

"I'll try," said Joe. "I'll try."

He stammered away, "Respectability," and he together interfering alarmingly with the comfort of Mr. Filicoff, who had stopped in the middle of the pavement to stare glassily at Ariel. Eugene accompanied the latter into the house, and Joe, looking back, understood. Mamie had sent a stepbrother to bring Ariel in—and to keep him from following.

"This afternoon!" The thought took away his breath, and he became paler.

CHAPTER XII.

MAMIE, waiting just inside the door as Ariel and Eugene entered, gave the visitor a pale greeting and a moment later, bearing the wheels of the brougham, crunched the gravel of the carriage drive, hurried away down the broad hall and disappeared. Ariel dropped her parasol upon a marble-topped table near the door and, removing her gloves, drifted into a room at the left, where a grand piano found shelter beneath crimson plush. After a moment of contemplation she pushed back the coverlet and, seating herself upon the plush-covered piano stool to match, let her fingers run up and down the keyboard once and fell listlessly in her lap as she gazed with deep interest at three life-sized colored photographs in carved gilt frames upon the wall she was facing—Judge Pike, Mamie and Mrs. Pike, with her babies.

"Please don't stop playing, Miss Tabor," said a voice behind her. She had not observed that Eugene had followed her into the room.

"Very well, if you like," she answered, looking up to smile absently at him, and she began to play a rakish little air which, composed by some little brain at a cafe table, had lately slipped out of the Moulin Rouge to disport itself over Paris. She played it slowly in the minor, with elfish pathos, while he leaned upon the piano, his eyes fixed upon her fingers, while here few rings—none, he observed, with an unreasonable pleasure upon the third finger of the left hand.

"It's one of those simpler Grieg things, isn't it?" he said, sighing gently. "I care for Grieg."

"Would you mind its being Chamade?" she returned, dropping her eyes to cloak the sin.

"Ah, no; I recognize it now," replied Eugene. "He appeals to me even more than Grieg."

At this she glanced quickly up at him, but more quickly down again, and hastened the time emphatically, swinging the little air into the major.

"Do you play 'The Pilgrim's Chorus'?"

She shook her head.

"You told me where you lived," she answered.

She shook her head.

She shook her head.

She shook her head.

She shook her head.

She shook her head.

She shook her head.

OXYOLINE GAS FOR INHALING.

Vitality depends on good blood. Oxyoline Gas makes good blood. When there is good rich blood there is perfect nutrition, and consequently good health. Oxyoline Gas is a superb agent in influencing the proper functions of elimination and assimilation. It builds up wasted tissues, and assists nature in eliminating those which are diseased and is unexcelled as an alterative and blood maker. It should always be used when the blood lacks that vital element, hemoglobin.

Oxyoline Gas promotes appetite, improves digestion, induces refreshing sleep, makes good, rich, red blood, tones up the nervous system, strengthens the heart and gives general renewed strength and vitality.

OXYOLINE TREATMENT FOR CONSUMPTION.
Two cases out of every three treated with Oxyoline have been cured by oxyoline treatment. Oxyoline has no equal in curing Consumption. No other treatment has ever produced such good results.

OXYOLINE is a certain and speedy cure for Syphilis.

176 cases of Syphilis in the various stages and conditions treated and cured with Oxyoline without a single failure. Not one case could show any symptoms of existing activity of the disease after the first six weeks of treatment by the Oxyoline method. The Oxyoline method of treatment is now known as an unquestionable and absolute specific in syphilis. It surpasses the famous Hot Springs of Arkansas in treating Syphilis, and no potash or mercury after effects. PURE BLOOD AND DISEASE ARE STRANGERS TO EACH OTHER. ### CARD OF THANKS.

We take this method to sincerely thank the many kind neighbors, friends, and members of Lima Court No. 560 of the Independent Order of Foresters, for all their kindness during the sickness, death and burial of our dear husband and father, Frank J. S. Jones, of Epworth church, choir, and pastor, Rev. Weaver, for kindness, music and comforting words. To all who extended their sympathy by so many beautiful flowers.

MRS. STELLA LONES AND CHILDREN.

OBITUARY.

Frank Jesse S. Lones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron J. Lones, was born November 3, 1861, on the farm five miles southeast of Lima, where he made his home until the death of his father in 1882, since which time he has lived in Lima. Died January 26, 1907, at his home at 430 north Shawnee street, after an illness of six weeks. Aged 45 years, 2 months and 23 days. He was united in marriage June 2, 1893 to Miss Stella Carnutte, who is left to mourn his loss. He leaves five children, three sons and two daughters, the youngest a mere babe of three months. Two children, a son and a daughter preceded him to the great beyond. He is also survived by his mother aged nearly 85 years, four sisters and six brothers.

He was engaged in the wall paper business, having a store at 124 east Market street, in which he was quite successful. He had been in poor health for many years, being a sufferer from asthma and hay fever, but by strong determination and pluck he kept up, and pushed his business with a view.

A few weeks before his death he gave his heart and life to his Heavenly Father for life or death. He gave many words of testimony of his assurance of his acceptance, and was happy in his hopes of heaven, through the redeeming power of Jesus as his Savior, in whom he put his trust, and in whose care he placed his sorrowing family, urging them, and all, to meet him in heaven. He was conscious to within a few minutes of his death, speaking to his loved ones with remarkable composure and earnestness. He made a strong effort for life, but freed death bravely, going without a fear, or a struggle. He was a respected member of Lima Court No. 560 of The Independent Order of Foresters, which lodge furnished the pall bearers, and attended the funeral in a body. The funeral was preached Jan. 28, 1907, at 2 p. m. by Rev. A. H. Weaver, at Epworth M. E. church, of which he had recently become a member. Burial in Woodlawn cemetery, where the lodge of Foresters took charge with their beautiful burial service.

BARTL NOT A CANADIAN

But a Native of Rochester, New York,
Where He Was Born
September 18, 1885.

There is a general impression among Marionites says the Marion Mirror, that Fred Bartl, the champion 148 to 155 pound wrestler, who is now a resident of this city, is a Canadian, that impression being given from the fact that he won the welter-weight and middle-weight championship of Canada, and also from the fact that he came from Hamilton, Ont. Bartl, nevertheless, is a native born American citizen, having been born in Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 18, 1885, making him just 22 years of age last September.

When a small boy, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bartl, now residents of Rochester, N. Y., moved to a farm near that city and it was on this farm that Bartl spent his boyhood days, experiencing all of the hardships incidental to farm life. Bartl attended the district schools near his home, but it must be confessed, took more interest in rough outdoor sports than in his school work. Leaving school at the age of 12 years, young Bartl assisted his father for three years on the farm, and when a little past fifteen years, was apprenticed to the village blacksmith, to learn the horseshoeing and blacksmithing trade.

It was while working at this trade that Bartl had his first professional wrestling match. Bartl, at the time was a well developed lad of 16 and, as is natural in boys of that age, had a great deal of confidence in himself. A young man in that vicinity had quite a local reputation as a wrestler, and Bartl, rather in a joking way, offered to bet his month's wages that he could defeat the local champion. His salary at the time was $12 per month, and the other man accepting, the match was held in the blacksmith shop one night after working hours. The two boys were about evenly matched as to weight, but the other man had all of the science, Bartl was thrown two falls in less than 15 minutes. He took his defeat good naturedly, notwithstanding the fact that he, for a long time, was unmercifully "diddled" by all of his friends and relatives. His greatest regret, in losing this match, was the fact that he not only lost a month's wages, ($12) but also a week's time, as he was laid up in bed that length of time recovering from the effects of this awful grueling. It may be interesting to know that Bartl's opponent, on this occasion was none other than Chas. Kaiser, one of the greatest middle-weight wrestlers in America, whose home is in Rochester, N. Y.

For some time after this match, Bartl said but little concerning his ability as a wrestler, but continued to wrestle anyone whom he could get to go on with him, usually picking some one more experienced than himself, and as he lost more often than he won, it can truly be said that he learned most about the wrestling game by being beaten. When about 19 years of age, Bartl left home, going to Hamilton, Ont., to work for an uncle in a blacksmith shop, and joining an athletic club, began to show exceptional abilities as a boxer and wrestler, and soon became the club's champion both as a wrestler and a boxer. Returning to Rochester on a visit, Bartl again tackled Kaiser, who by this time had gained more than a local reputation, and succeeded in getting a draw with him, neither man gaining a fall in over two hours wrestling. Returning to Hamilton, Bartl branched out as a bona fide professional wrestler, and during the early part of the winter of 1905-6 met and defeated twenty-seven different men, his first appearance being against four of the best local wrestlers. Bartl agreeing to throw all four in one hour. He won the match, getting the four falls in 57 minutes.

On May 18, 1906, at Hamilton, Ont., Bartl won the welter-weight championship of Canada by defeating Charles Conkle, then the acknowledged champion, two falls in 47 and 32 minutes.

Since then, Bartl's record is well known to Marion followers of the game. In meeting Charles Olson, Friday night, Bartl goes up against one of the Big Four, in the wrestling game, a man, of whom it is predicted, will, within two years be the heavy weight championship of the world. Bartl will do his best to make a good showing, but as Olson outweighs him by some 30 pounds, and as they are both young and aggressive, it is hardly probable that Bartl can get a fall, although that is by no means an impossibility.

During the week beginning February 4, Bartl will be at the Empire theatre in Cleveland, where he will meet and agree to throw in 15 minutes, all comers under 155 pounds.

Spencerville Won.

In the game of basketball between the Spencerville girls and the Sidney girls at the former place last night, the Allen county girls won by a score of 17 to 1, again demonstrating the right of the Spencerville team to claim the state championship.

TOO HEAVY

For Bartl Olson Proved, Throwing Him Five Times in 50 Minutes.

Old Olson was too much for Bartl last night. He is, as is well known, far above Bartl's class as to weight, not counting experience, and he agreed to throw Bartl five times in an hour. However, he got in a hurry and did it in thirty-six minutes.

NOT SO MUCH

WERE THE CLARK COUNTY BASKET BALL PLAYERS, AS INDICTED BY LAST NIGHT'S SCORE.

There can be no doubt that the absence of Al Akerman has weakened the White Star Basketball team but the weakness was not noticeable last night. The visitors had to smile and look pleasant with a score of 14, while that of the locals was 65.

The score in detail, follows:
Springfield, 14; Merrill, 1, 2 goals; Burmeister, 2, 2 free throws; Wall, 3, 3 goals; Starr, 1 goal; Lafferty, 8.
Lima, 65—Shaw, 1, 10 goals; Frey, 1, 3 goals; M. Laudick, 1, and 3, 9 goals; L. Laudick, 4 goals, 3 free throws; Witmer, 5; Klump, 3, 3 goals; DeVoe, 2, 2 goals.

BARTL AND THE INDIANS WILL WRESTLE NEXT TUESDAY.

Arthur Mon True the great Indian wrestler will arrive here tomorrow all ready for his go with Bartl next Tuesday night. The Indian is a rough wrestler and will surely make it exciting for Bartl. These men have met once before in Canada when they wrestled to a two hour draw. Chas. Olson who defeated Bartl last night will be here to referee the match. The sale of seats is good.

Of going to the Workhouse, but is Trying to Break Himself of It.

James Winters, the Elida man, who was recently arrested by Sheriff Van Gunten, just as he was leaving the Toledo workhouse, after serving a term there for chicken stealing, was yesterday tried before Justice Dempster, on the same charge and found guilty.

The trial of Winters had been started once before but owing to the illness of the defendant's wife, it was postponed until yesterday. She did not appear yesterday, either, because of alleged illness, but the case was tried anyway and Winters received a sentence of thirty days in the workhouse as to pay the costs of the trial.

Attorneys for the defense have given bond for the carrying of the case to the common pleas court on the grounds of error. They agreed with the attorneys for the prosecution that the witnesses in the case be separated, after they had been sworn and this was done. However, it developed that after the case had gone almost to a finish, some of the witnesses for the defense who had remained in the courtroom were called and the prosecution objected to their testimony, an objection which was upheld by the court.

A SURPRISE.

Quite a pleasant surprise was given yesterday, Feb. 1st, at the home of Mrs. Wm. Anthony, 187 south Central avenue, it being Mrs. Anthony's birthday. When near the noon hour a number of ladies gathered with well filled baskets. Those present were:

Mrs. C. R. Phillips.
Mrs. N. Johnston.
Mrs. J. W. Biddinger.
Mrs. C. M. Priestap and daughter Berline.
Mrs. Banks and daughter Bessie.

Mrs. Eda Copeland and daughter Cecile.
Mrs. J. Geulinger.
Miss Blanch Phillips.
Miss Evelyn Johnston.
Miss Nettie Johnston.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Tennyson and Longfellow could take a worthless sheet of paper, write a poem on it, and make it worth $50,000. That's Genius. Rockefeller could write a few words on a sheet of paper and make it worth $6,000,000. That's Capital. A Machine can take material worth $5.00 and make it into watch springs worth $1,000. That's Skill. To pay others $1.00 to get your shoes half soled, when you can get it done better for $0.40. That's Foolish. L. A. Grove the up-to-date shoe repairer has a new Champion sitcher. Can sew on your soles, while you wait. Best stock used. To give me a trial That's Common Sense. By the Bridge on south Main street, Jan 31-2w

MRS. M.M. MARSHALL

Cataract of Digestive Organs and Bowels.

Mrs. MARY M. MARSHALL, Tippecanoe, Mo., writes:
"I suffered three years with catarrh of the digestive organs and bowels. I was unable to find relief, until as a last resort I was induced to try Peruna."
"I began the use of Peruna when I was confined to the bed and can say that I experienced benefit from the first dose."
"I have taken five bottles in all and believe that I am cured of my trouble."
"I am enjoying as good health as an old lady of my age could expect. My age is 77."

"I recommend your medicines to sufferers whenever I meet them, and some of my friends are using them with great success."
"I will always feel grateful to you for your grand medicine and kind advice and trust that many others may be as greatly benefited as I have been."

Peruna For Bowel Trouble.

Mrs. L. S. Tinker, 832 Second street, Macon, Ga., writes:
"Two years ago my grandson suffered with hemorrhages of the bowels and he was treated by different doctors, but without cure."
"We quit all other treatment, and began the use of Peruna, and after the use of three bottles he seemed to be quite well. He is able now to walk six miles to school every day."

"Peruna has certainly worked wonders for him, and I shall not hesitate to recommend it."

MISS ANNA CARSTEN

Miss Anna Carsten, Clayton, Ill., writes:
"Your medicine, Peruna, did me so much good. I believe I should have been dead by this time if I had not used it."
"I am feeling so well now and have no trouble with my stomach. I have not taken any medicine for four or five months."
"If I am ever troubled with anything of the kind again, I shall take nothing but Peruna. I can cheerfully recommend it to my friends."

A Severe Cough.

Mrs. Emma Martin, Odessa, Mo., writes:
"I cannot thank you enough for curing me. For two years I doctored my cough which cost me many dollars, but still I seemed to get worse. My cough was so bad I could not sleep."
"Finally I purchased a bottle of Peruna. I took it according to directions, and in a short while I felt better, and after I had taken a second bottle I felt entirely well."

"After the use of six bottles I feel that I am cured, and therefore recommend this grand medicine to all who suffer with a cough as I did."

MISS EVA SCHELLE

Miss Eva Schelle, 127 N. Quincy St., Topeka, Kas., writes:
"I unhesitatingly recommend Peruna as a splendid specific for catarrh of the bowels. I was a sufferer with this trouble off and on for a number of years and each fresh cold added to the difficulty."
"Finally I began taking Peruna for a cold and was glad to note that it was ridding me of the catarrh also."
"I continued to use it faithfully and the result was a complete cure in a very few months."

MRS. CHRISTINA CLOW

Mrs. Christina Clow, 411 E. Platte Ave., Colorado Springs, Col., writes:
"I have taken Peruna off and on for six years and have found it very beneficial in a great many ways."
"I took it for a cough and a cold, also for catarrh of the bladder, and it cured me. I took it for a tonic and it gave me strength. I have every reason to speak well of your medicine."

FAITH THAT CANNOT BE SHAKEN.

Despite everything that sensational magazines may say, the women of the United States continue to have faith in Peruna.

These women know a great deal more about Peruna than the editors who have for selfish purposes, written against it. These women have tried Peruna in their families. They have taken it themselves. They know it will help them.

They have suffered from various ailments, and Peruna has come to their relief, even when the doctors failed to cure them.

Such women cannot be convinced by any editorial spam that their favorite household remedy is a humbug. Peruna goes right on in its conquest over disease. Its fame is spreading all over the earth.

Especially among American women is Peruna a beloved household remedy. It is entirely useless for anyone to try to dissuade them from the results of their own experience.

Peruna is a remedy for the mucous membrane. It therefore has a bene-dicial effect upon the internal organs of the body that are lined by mucous membranes.

For various chronic climatic diseases Peruna is a reliable remedy. The testimonials concerning Peruna are given in the language of the people. We do not change or add to anything they may say concerning it.

The evidence is overwhelming that Peruna is a safe, reliable, invaluable remedy for the household.

Headache and Backache.

Mrs. Franziska Gaengel, Domitien 1, Old Bridgeport Mines, C. B., Canada, writes:
"I thank you for the benefit which I derived from Peruna. There may be many who are suffering from the same disease that I had, for which they have not yet been able to find the correct remedy."

"For the benefit of such persons I wish to say that I suffered with headache and backache and had a severe cough. I was in bed several weeks and could not do my work. I tried many remedies in vain."

"Then I consulted Dr. Hartman, who advised me to take Peruna and gave me further instructions, which I faithfully observed."

"I felt better after taking the first bottle. I have taken several bottles now and am feeling so well that I can do all my work."

"I will never be without Peruna again, and recommend it to all."

Cataract of the Stomach.

Mrs. Mary Allen, Route 6, Franklin, Tenn., writes:

"I am glad to be able to tell you that I am well of catarrh of the stomach, and am sincerely thankful to you for your advice."

"If it had not been for Peruna I would never have been well. I had three physicians. One of them told my husband that he could not cure me."

"I had been sick about nine months when a friend asked me to try Peruna to gratify her; so I commenced taking it. I can eat and walk and work."

"Everybody says I look as well as I ever did. Oh, you don't know how thankful I do feel to you! I have got several other people to take Peruna. I praise it to everybody."

some of rustic peasant folks to the palaces of the Mediterranean.

The prologue is an episode which offers opportunity for rare dramatic treatment. A babe is cast away to die in the meshes of a lily pond. The babe of creation is rescued in a dramatic manner, as her tiny form is held above the waters by a lily blossom.

The tragedy of the life of this cast-away is the theme of the play. As "Lolita," the cast-away, grown to a divinity of womanhood, Miss Holland dominates the entire piece from the time she sells her roses and sorrows at the shrine of Our Lady in the market place, passes through the camps with the roving gypsy players, until she discovers the secret of her birth and is restored to her noble birth rights. Miss Holland in the part of "Lolita" is a romantic triumph.

Her engagement in this city promises to be the treat of the dramatic year.

Truly memorable events come but infrequently—often only once in a life time. Frequently their immensity is unknown, or but slightly forecasted so that we are illly prepared to meet them. When forewarned of one's approach, it is indeed an unwise man or woman who does not make as ready as the occasion suggests.

The farewell appearance of Mme. Helent Modjeska at the Faurot opera house on next Saturday night is such an event. To sit under the spell of the art and personality of this splendid actress even under ordinary conditions is a delight and a privilege. But heretofore, when there was fair certainty that she would return again, there was none of the concern, not to say anxiety and sorrow, which her present coming—her last here—brings with it.

Modjeska is one of those grand figures of the stage, like Edwin Booth, Charlotte Cushman, Ellen Terry, Mary Anderson and Henry Irving, whose intellect, purpose, achievement and life raised acting into the realm of the fine arts, and established the theatre as one of the perment of musical comedy purpose is touring his second season under the Hurlig and Season banner; with a degree of genuine success, such as is rarely recorded and from reliable sources it is learned that the same vehicle "Rufus Rastus" which served him so extremely well in the past, as a fun offering of tuneful importance is commanding the finest kind of enthusiastic consideration.

Tonight—"Human Hearts."

Saturday—"Modjeska."

Double plays are greatly in vogue again, and for that reason the coming of Mary Emerson in "His Majesty and the Maid" is doubly welcome. Miss Emerson is now appearing under the management of the famous Philadelphia firm of Nixon & Zimmerman, who recognizing her undoubted ability secured a long term contract with the winsome little woman. The play which Miss Emerson is using this season is one which she has done with success for the last two seasons. It has its locale in Germany and the story concerns the child of the reigning king, Alicia, who has been kept in ignorance of her royal birth for the reason that her stepmother cherishes a great animosity toward her, which renders her life at court unsafe. Alicia accidentally learns of a plot against her king's father's life and in the guise of a boy enters the palace to thwart it. She confers with the conspirators and in the end learns their plans only to be discovered. A furious sword-fight ensues in which Alicia disables her enemies and escapes. Plot follows plot and in the end she saves the king's life and is reinstated in her proper sphere. A cast of universal excellence has been engaged by Nixon & Zimmerman to support Miss Emerson. Among the most prominent members may be mentioned, Robert Sanford, Conrad Cantzon, Stuart Beebe, Russell E. White, A. L. Nagle, James E. Nichols, James White, Roger Acker, Edith Jones, Louise Muldener, Violet Fisher and May Holby. The scenic investiture is all that can be desired, and the view of the Forest Home of Alicia, the King's Palace, The Tap Room of the Golden Lion, and the Court Ballroom are exquisite examples of the scene painters art. As regards the costumes, all of our readers know what the requirements of a piece like "His Majesty and the Maid" are. Silks and satins form the basis of most of the brilliancy of the players attire and the brilliant Hussar costumes offer the male members of the cast an opportunity to display their manly figures to advantage. Miss Emerson and her big company will appear at the Faurot opera house on next Wednesday night and a record record breaking business is anticipated by Manager Haller in view of the unusual interest shown in her coming.

Love and lies have formed the world drama from the time Adam and Eve invented the fig leaf apron. Love and lies form the base for Mildred Holland's splendid new play, "A Paradise of Lies," which will be given its first production in this city at the Faurot opera house on next Thursday night. The play is by Matthew Barry, and its scenes are laid in Italy at the end of the romantic eighteenth century. The action carries the characters from the manent and powerful institutions of modern life. The measure of her greatness is equal to the measure of regret at her nearing retirement and the measure of eagerness to see her in her final appearances.

How great is the interest in her good-bye tour is proved by the different cities along her route vying with one another to make their testimonials to her of the warmest nature possible. Her travels thus far have been a series of ovations, expressing affection and appreciation. Modjeska retires while at the height of her power. She never acted with more sincerity, charm, conviction and intelligence than she is doing this year.

Ernest Hogan the premier of all colored comedians and his merry aggregation of artists, in every depart-ized its production, will be at the Faurot opera house Feb. 14 and ought to furnish the brightest and most acceptable sort of entertainment.

This is to announce to the patrons of the Faurot that the "Show Girl," a musical comedy of unusual merit, will be seen here on an early date. To those who make it a point to

False Alarm

Sounded by Someone Envious of the Property of the Whitney & Carrier Co.

IN THE MUSICAL WORLD.

It has been rumored by reliable persons during past few days that the popular Whitney & Carrier Co. piano store on West High street, was to be discontinued February 1. It seems that the wish must have been father to the thought in some minds, at least for there is absolutely no foundation for such talk. The Whitney & Carrier Co. have been conducting a pre-inventory sale which closed the night of January 31, and on account of special inducements offered in 1906 styles as well as a few sample pianos their 1906 stock was almost sold out.

It was probably due to the empty appearance of the ware rooms during past 2 or 3 days that some one started above rumors. We notice several pianos being unloaded there today and we were also shown several beautiful new styles in the strictly high grade marks of pianos which always grace the ware rooms of this old reliable piano house. The Whitney & Carrier Co. have a lease on the quarters occupied by them and are "here to stay."

The volume of business enjoyed by this house and their constantly increasing trade since being established in Lima some years ago, is a testimony to the superior line of pianos handled by them and to the fair dealing "worded" prospective buyers at all times.

WRESTLING

HUGH HARLEY WAS KILLED YESTERDAY

Young Man From Lima Lost His Life In Freight Wreck at Dawson--Another Had Leg Broken.

In a bad freight wreck which occurred on the Big Four railroad at Dawson between 7 and 8 o'clock yesterday morning, Hugh Harley, a young man from Lima, was killed, and H. K. Lovett, another Lima young man, had his ankle broken. Eleven cars were wrecked.

The train wrecked was west bound through freight train No. 93 which passed through Sidney about 7 o'clock. The wreck occurred at the switch at the ice house just west of Dawson, the scene of several wrecks within the past few years. The train was running at a rapid rate of speed and it is supposed that a break beam on one of the cars fell down catching on the rails at the switch. Immediately the cars were piled up in a heap. In all eleven cars were wrecked. The cars were loaded with carpets, dry goods, paper and merchandise of all kinds. Several of the cars were smashed almost to kindling wood and their contents scattered all along the track.

On the train was a crowd of several young men from Lima who were on their way to Indianapolis in search of work. Harley was caught underneath one of the cars about fifty feet from the track and his body was not gotten out until about 11 o'clock. He was badly mutilated, being almost cut to pieces. His arms and legs were cut off and the main parts of his body mangled and cut.

In company with young Harley were three other Lima boys. One of them, Harry Lovett, aged 18, a brother of Freeman Lovett of the Central house, whose home is on north Main street received a fracture of an ankle and the dislocation of a shoulder while the other lads, Harry Murphy and Jerry Duggan, both of north Main street, escaped unharmed.

The wrecking crew from Bellefontaine was called out to clear up the wreckage which proved an all day job.

All trains on the Big Four, both east and west after the wreck were detained over the C. H. & D. by way of Pliska, Covington and Versailles, until the track was cleared.

Dr. Costello, the Big Four physician, was called to Dawson to attend to the injured and give such relief possible.

The remains of the young man that was killed were taken to Sidney late yesterday afternoon by Undertaker Taylor and prepared for burial.

They were brought to Lima this morning by a representative of the local undertaking firm of Eckert & Son and are still at their establishment on south Main street. The arrangements for the funeral have not been completed.

Deceased was a brother of Mrs. A. Brown of 331 east Market street.
